

ART

Apocalyptic settlements explode horizontally from artist Gerry Judah's three-dimensional canvases, in pure white, blood red, and burnt-out black. Comprising intricately made buildings replete with stairwells, satellite dishes and wiry networks of communications systems, these unique paintings terrifyingly capture the terrible price of modern warfare.

Babylon, Gerry Judah. Flowers, 82 Kingsland Rd, London E2.

Until December 24.

www.flowerseast.com

RECOMMENDED

Eric Gill: Sacred And Profane

Until February 28 2010

*Pallant House Gallery
Chichester*

From his fervent Roman Catholicism to accusations levelled against him of incest and bestiality, this exhibition explores the notoriously polarised life and art of engraver, typographer and sculptor Eric Gill.

Unique:
White Country 1 (2009)